LORELLE MEETS THE OBSOLETE Datura (Sonic Cathedral)

Mexican duo Lorelle Meets The Obsolete make a very welcome return with a short, sharp shock of a record with no unnecessary adornments and no fat on any of its eight songs. Gone are the psychedelic wig-outs found on previous releases, replaced with bass-heavy post-punk grooves inspired by the roots of The Congos, the no wave of Ike Yard, the industrial hip-hop of Dälek and the dark modular moves of Hiro Kone, all while harnessing the elemental power of Jon Hassell's Vernal Equino.
