KRONOS QUARTET Black Angels (Nonesuch)

First released in 1990, the album features David Harrington (violin), John Sherba, (violin), Hank Dutt (viola), and Joan Jeanrenaud (cello) performing George Crumb's title piece, which inspired Harrington to found the quartet in 1973, and works by Charles Ives, István Márta, Thomas Tallis, and Dmitri Shostakovich. Crumb's title piece, called 'an unusually elevated and searing Vietnam War protest' by the New York Times, sets a dark, powerful tone for this collection, which addresses the political/physical/spiritual consequences of war

SAN LUCAS BAND Music Of Guatemala (Bongo Joe Records)

First reissue of these cult 1974 recordings of a Mayan brass band playing funeral dirges and popular songs in its distinctive extended harmonic and rhythmic style. The members of the San Lucas Band lived in the mountain village of San Lucas Tolimán, Guatemala, playing local events of both religious and social nature. The pride of their town since 1922, the band represented a fast-disappearing musical tradition when these recordings were originally released in 1975.
